Camp Bear Creek Ready For Scouts

Girl Scouts in Murray will be welcome this year, as always, to attend Camp Bear Creek on Kentucky Lake. Plans for the new primitive and trip unit and for admitting Brownies to the camp have met with enthusiasm and approval among the Girl Scouts and their parents.

Camp opens for the first session on June 26th, and there are still places available in all age groups and special programs for all sessions through the summer. Detailed information and application cards may be obtained at the Girl Scout office, 123 South 6th Street, Paducah.

On Friday of this week, June 10th, Camp Bear Creek will begin to accept registrations from girls who are not Scouts and from Girl Scouts outside the Bear Creek Council.

The Camp Director and members of the Bear Creek Committee have been busy the past few weeks getting the camp ready to re-open and ordering new and additional equipment which will include canoes and rowboats, Archery equipment, trip tents, mattresses, unit cooking equipment, and a truck. The acquisition of the truck means that girls and their parents and the Camp Counselors will not have to carry luggage to and from the more distant unit sites.

The staff for this summer is nearly complete. Those who are returning from previous years include Mrs. C. A. Culver of Clinton who will again be the Assistant Director; Miss Carolyn Melugin and Miss Nancy Lee O'Connell both of Murray who will be in charge of the waterfront; Miss Phyllis Harris of Paducah who will be in charge of the primitive and trip unit; Mrs. W. W. Dyer of Paducah, who will work with the Counselors-in-Charge; Mrs. Lesaunder A. Myers of Paducah who will work with the Brownies this year; and Mrs. Sammie Daniel and Mrs. Ruth Taylor, who will again be the cooks.

Heavy Smoking Makes Changes

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 8 (AP) — Heavy smoking may be associated with structural changes in the larynx, the human voice box, according to Drs. Robert R. Ryan, John R. McDonald and Kenneth D. Devine.

They disclosed Tuesday to the American Medical Association that post mortem studies revealed the larynx changes.

They classified "heavy smokers" as persons who smoke at least one pack of cigarettes or several cigars a day.

The doctors, from the Mayo Clinic and Foundation at Rochester, Minn., said they were able to separate by laboratory examination the larynxes of smokers from non-smokers before learning the smoking habits of the persons from whom the specimens were taken.

They said the most noticeable change in the larynx of the heavy smokers was a thickening of the surface tissue of the vocal cords.

Italian Premier May Have Saved His Job In Elections

By CHARLES M. MCANANY

United Press Staff Correspondent

Italian Premier Mario Scelba may have saved his job by his victory in the Sicilian regional election.

So, it is good news for the United States and its allies. Scelba is a firm friend of this country. He hates the Communists, and the Communists hate him.

Scelba has been in trouble for several months. The coalition which he leads is shaky. Rebels in his own Christian Democratic Party have been gunning for him. He suffered a loss of prestige when Giovanni Gronchi, one of his party enemies, was elected president of Italy on April 29.

Gronchi is a member of the left wing of the Christian Democratic Party. Scelba's leadership is opposed also by a strong group of right wing members of the party.

Everybody agreed to let things rest until after last Sunday's elections in Sicily for a regional assembly of 90 members.

No Confidence Threat
Had the Christian Democrats suffered a defeat, Scelba's enemies planned to introduce a motion of no confidence against him at the opening of the Italian Parliament next Monday.

In the old Sicilian assembly, the Christian Democrats held 30 seats and the Sicilian Communist and left wing Socialists ruled with the support of small groups.

The Communists, who are losing strength steadily on the Italian mainland, threw everything they had into the Sicilian campaign. The election, however, proved a clear victory for Scelba. The Reds kept their 30 seats. But the Christian Democrats gained seven, at the expense of splinter parties — to make their total in the assembly 37.

Also the Communist popular vote declined for the first time since World War II.

Scelba's pro-American, anti-Red policy has been strengthened, and he has been strengthened personally.

Future Looks Bright
There is to be a Christian Democratic Party caucus Friday. What will happen there remains to be seen. But the stocky, smiling, 53-year-old premier may be expected to face his critics boldly and to ask no favors. At the moment, his chance of riding out a threatened crisis looks good.

Scelba has had a long, spectacular career in politics. He attended his first political rally when he

Ward Assumes Chandler Agents Made Check

FRANKFORT, June 8 (AP) — Henry Ward, state commissioner of conservation, said today he assumes the attorney and accountant who are investigating the state-owned hotel at Kentucky Lake State Park were hired by the A. B. Chandler forces.

E. A. Bowden, Louisville certified public accountant, and J. Gerald Johnston, Frankfort attorney, conferred with Ward Tuesday on the subject of the records of the Kenlake Hotel.

Ward told them the record of users of the accommodations at the Kenlake Hotel is kept at one park and not at his office. They indicated they would go to the park to examine the records.

Ward said he will write the park superintendent at Kenlake to direct him to co-operate fully in the investigation.

Johnston refused to divulge who hired him and Bowden to make the probe. He would only identify his clients as "a taxpayers' group" composed of interested citizens.

Johnston is a former assistant attorney general who has been active in Franklin County in support of Chandler who is running for the Democratic nomination for governor.

Chandler has charged the administration with issuing cards to favored politicians entitling them to free food and lodging at state parks.

Ward has denied the charge that the cards were issued for political purposes. He said they were used only in an effort to promote development of the parks system.

Quick Release Of Serum Is Expected

By MICHAEL J. O'NEILL

United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, June 8 (AP) — The government vaccine clearance committee meets today in a secret session that may lead to the quick release of several million more Salk polio shots for the nation's lagging vaccination program.

Dr. L. L. Lilly Co. announced it was rushing new testing data on 3 million shots to Washington in the hope the group could recommend their immediate approval.

Information on another 500,000 Lilly doses was sent in earlier. The committee, which is headed by Dr. James A. Shannon of the National Institutes of Health and includes Dr. Jonas E. Salk, was set up by the Public Health Service to rule on the release of vaccine and to check on testing and manufacturing methods.

Not Enough Shots
Dr. Leonard A. Scheele, U. S. surgeon general, declared in a nation-wide, radio-TV report on the vaccine problem Tuesday night that there will not be enough shots to protect all American children this summer.

But clearance of the new Lilly supplies by the vaccine committee and the health service would put the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis well on the way to completing its mass inoculation program for first and second graders.

Release of more than 1 million Lilly shots Monday already has permitted the foundation to finish its first round shipments to five northern states and to start the nationwide second round of shots in eight Southern and Western states.

Restore Public Confidence
Scheele's broadcast Tuesday night was part of the administration's urgent effort to restore confidence in the vaccine which was shaken by nearly two months of uncertainty, confusion and anxiety. The next step will be a massive report to the President Thursday.

Scheele said there is "always a possibility" that small amounts of live virus will turn up in Salk vaccine. But under the government's new safety standards, he said, the activity of the virus is reduced as much as science can reduce it "without destroying the effectiveness of the vaccine."

He assured parents they can have complete confidence in the vaccine's safety. But he added that in deciding whether to use it on their children they should follow the advice of their own physician or local health officer who knows the problems in their areas best.

Ike Believes Adenauer Will Hold To Western Allies

By WILLIAM GALBRAITH

United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, June 8 (AP) — President Eisenhower today expressed his utmost confidence that West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer will remain faithful to the Western allies.

The President told a news conference that Russia's dramatic incursion for Adenauer to go to Moscow was a logical development following recent European events in which West Germany regained its sovereignty.

The President said the question of what to do about the Soviet invitation is the exclusive decision of West Germany. But he said the United States knows Adenauer and has the utmost faith and confidence in him. He said this country knows Adenauer will stand by his allies.

Germans Welcome Bid
In Bonn, the West German government said it welcomed the Soviet note calling for normal diplomatic relations between the two nations. The German government added that it hopes the Kremlin's move will lead to a conference between Adenauer and the statesmen of the Soviet Union. West Germany's three largest political parties also hailed the Russian note.

The President raised some hopes that some progress may be made in this summer's Big Four heads-of-state meeting when he said changes are going on. He noted the recent trip of Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin and Nikita S. Khrushchev, Soviet Communist boss, to Yugoslavia and the new Soviet invitation to Adenauer to establish diplomatic relations with West Germany.

Mr. Eisenhower said in such a changing atmosphere it may be possible to find new ways to tackle world problems.

The President was asked about his warning in an address Tuesday that the world should be cautious about getting its hopes too high. A reporter asked what about chances for accomplishment.

Always Seeking Peace
The President said that he had also pointed out in that speech the United States will never cease searching for new avenues of peace.

He said he has pointed out before there is a great faith in the world that the "summit" talks might open up a new path. The President said all he has tried to do is caution against getting hopes too high.

Auto Workers Continue In Walkouts

By REY W. BRUNE

United Press Staff Correspondent

DETROIT (AP) — Wildcat strikes curtailed production and idled thousands of workers throughout the nation today despite union agreements with the nation's two largest auto producers.

Sporadic walkouts by General Motors workers which anticipated the expiration of the CIO United Auto Workers' contract with the company at midnight Tuesday night continued even though the contract deadline was extended to midnight Sunday.

Ford Motor Company's skilled workers left their jobs in protest of an agreement which union leaders had hoped to make a model for the auto industry.

Plant Shutdown Threatened
Workers at Ford's big Rouge plant in suburban Dearborn threatened to shut the plant because pay raises granted in a new contract weren't high enough to satisfy them.

The skilled workers received $1 to 18-cent hourly raises under the agreement reached by the union and the company Monday. But they said they needed 30 cents to keep up with pay scales for similar work outside Ford and the automotive field.

Carl Stelato, president of the huge local which has 48,000 members in the Rouge plant, failed in an attempt to talk the workers into ending their wildcat strike. He was heckled and booed so much he finally stalked out of a meeting with the workers.

"Good Contract"
Stelato said the agreement reached Monday was a "good contract" and warned workers they should return to their jobs. But the workers instead voted to strike for higher pay scales.

The GM walkouts came while the company was reviewing the new Ford contract to see how the jobs plan included in the pact would fit in with the sprawling General Motors operation.

The union appeared hopeful General Motors would quickly agree to the plan and make the Sunday strike deadline meaningless.

The deadline extension was agreed upon after the company said it wanted more time to study the agreement the union had reached with Ford.

John Livingston, union vice president who heads the General Motors department, said he expected "new offers" from the company this week and indications were a new contract would be agreed upon before Sunday night.

Combination Of Hacker And Hack Is Paying Off

By CARL LUNDQUIST
United Press Sports Writer

Hacker and Hack sounds like a strange partnership between a bad journalist and a bad golfer, but it could well be the key to the big success yarn of the 1955 baseball season.

Together, Manager Stan Hack and his veteran knuckleball pitcher, Warren Hacker, have revitalized the Chicago Cubs and there's something more than a similarity of names involved.

Hack picked up the remnants of his seventh place 1954 Cubs and concentrated on building a strong, pitching staff. Hacker, who had won only six games while losing 13 in the previous season, looked like strictly a liability, but his comeback has been typical of the entire club.

"What I like best about Hacker is that he can both start and relieve," said Hack. "One day this season he relieved in a game late and started the next day."

Last Saturday Hacker gained a 12 inning relief victory over the Giants, two days after being knocked out as a starter. Tuesday night as a starter he was knocked out again but gained his sixth victory 4-3, when the Cubs scored all their runs in the sixth to defeat the Pirates. The Cubs improved their second place position with the triumph which was achieved when they struck five singles and utilized an error for their rally.

Dee Fondy drove in the last two runs with a key hit.

Dodgers Beat Redlegs

"Brooklyn won its 22nd game at home against only five defeats, 4-8 from Cincinnati on a five-hitter by Johnny Podres. Milwaukee took over second place from the Giants with a 13-4 victory that included homers by Hank Aaron and Bobby Thomson in a six run second inning, and St. Louis edged Philadelphia 5-4. Stan Musial driving in three runs with a triple, double and safe bunt.

Owner Arnold Johnson of the Athletics who presented new suits of clothes to his players when they swept a double header in Detroit recently, must have felt like countering with lawsuits.

National League History at 32 still refuses to quit.

He has stayed on now with the Seattle club, managed by former major league pilot Freddie Hutchinson. Freddie, who is also seeking the road back to the big leagues, needs pitching badly. He was grumpy at straws — and so was Blackwell.

They say around the baseball circuit that "the Whip" is through. They say it sorrowfully, for every body liked and admired the 6-foot 6-inch Blackwell.

But, Blackwell doesn't agree with them.

"I am to go up there again," he says, grimly.

Courage has overcome many an apparently insurmountable obstacle. Yet many a game guy has failed to make the big league grade when his fast ball lacked that ultimate hop and his curve ball didn't break at just the right moment.

It would be really something to see Blackwell make it back. However, the odds against him are frightening.

Still, you've got to love the big guy for trying and keep your fingers crossed for him, too.

despite the double loss of the Athletics.
Hartfield's homer gave Ned Garver his first victory over the Yankees since Aug. 31, 1949, but it was well earned, an eight hitter in which he walked only one man in 12 innings.

Kansas City, leading 2-0 in the opener, dropped it when Bob Kline doubled home two runs and another scored on Bill Wilson's three base miff of a fly to center. Ed Fitzgerald homered for Washington and Gus Zernial for K. C. in the nightcap in which Mickey McDermott yielded 13 hits but won.

Olson Wanted To Fight Moore

ASBURY PARK, N. J. (UP) — Middleweight champion Carl Bobo Olson, who will attempt to prove that a good strong little man, can beat a good strong big man, said today that he wanted to fight light heavyweight king Archie Moore as far back as "five months ago."

"Even before the Joey Maxim fight in San Francisco, I asked my manager Sid Flaherty to get Moore for me," Olson said. "But Sid thought that I should fight Maxim first. When I beat Maxim, Sid wanted to wait and have me fight a few riddleweights, but I insisted that he get Moore because down deep in my heart I've always felt that I could lick him. In fact, I think that I've got a pretty good chance of knocking him out."

Olson meets Moore for the 175-pound championship at the Polo

Grounds in New York, June 22. Olson further pointed out that he wanted to hold the middle-weight and light heavyweight crowns, and then challenge for the heavyweight title.

Meanwhile, the 26-year-old bald-

THE BOSS OF BROKEN SPUR

By Nick Summer

CHAPTER FIFTEEN
THE LONGHORN saloon in Dodge City was bright and noisy and crowded with summer intent on having themselves a time. For those whose throats were dry with trail dust, there was liquor, and for those with a thirst of a different kind, there were bright, dressed, bare-armed women whose painted lips were generous with smiles and whose eyes were kind and warm. And there were cards and dice to take in wages that were burning holes in pockets, or who knew?—maybe to double them.

Kerry leaned an elbow on the bar, savoring a drink paid for with one of the few coins left in his pocket. He'd been riding the grub line, drifting from ranch to ranch, working a week or two here and there where an extra hand was needed, at the hospital of the bunkhouse for a few nights and moving on. Now here he was in Dodge City, God knew why, except that he'd always had a curiosity to see the famous trail town, and it had seemed as good a place to drift to as any. And the wages of his drifting were making a lone note in his pants pocket—the first money he'd ever earned. He supposed he ought to feel proud of it. But he only remembered the monotony of line-riding in the baking sun, the dust and stench of branding, and thought again that there was no way for man to bargain away his life at thirty a month and keep.

There was a sudden stopping of talk all over the room, and a turning of heads toward the little stage where the curtains were parting. The lanky piano-player tinkled out something soft and sentimental as a girl in a red dress walked onto the stage. She was small and very pretty, with a head full of black curls, and big dark eyes that seemed to invite them all to join her in enjoying a joke. Her smile gave every man in the Longhorn the feeling that she was smiling at him, yet it seemed to Kerry she was looking for something. When the black eyes had gone all round the saloon, he thought he saw her lip drop as if her search had been disappointing.

Next minute, smiling again, she began to sing, her voice warm and sweet. Each time she stopped, there were claps and shouts for more, but the third time she laughed and shook her head and came down off the stage. Smiling, she refused invitations to sit down and have a drink, dodged hands that reached out to catch at her arm or wrist—and kept seeking the door with her eyes.

"Like her, stranger?" Kerry turned at the sound of a voice near his elbow, and looked into a thin, olive-colored, smooth-shaven face and two bright slits of eyes that should have been dark, in that face, and instead, startlingly, were almost green, like glittering silvers of glass, except that you couldn't see into them.

Kerry's swift observation added that the speaker's black suit and white shirt looked expensive, and that he was tall, thin and graceful as a dancer, and would have been handsome, except for a scar that ran in a jagged purple line, from his right eye to the corner of his mouth.

"She's pretty," Kerry replied neutrally.

"Pretty, but not smart."

"I wouldn't know about that. I never saw her before. I was just looking for a curiosity to see."

"Sure," the stranger agreed. "She's here to be looked at. But you'll have to take out your money's worth in looking."

"I didn't have any other ideas—"

The green-eyed man gave him a small, tight smile. "Every man in Dodge has had ideas about Margie one time or other. They've all been wasting their time, except one—a crazy, riddle-footed cowpuncher. That's why I said she's not smart. But that's women for you. None of my business. Just thought I'd warn you," he added, and held up a hand to the bartender. "Have one with me."

"Thanks," Kerry noted the softness and whiteness of the hand, put them together with the expensive clothes, the schooled way of speaking—and the poker face. A gambler. That scar was probably a souvenir of some hot-headed card-player who didn't like losing. "My name's Calder—Lou Calder."

Kerry murmured his own name, and fancied he saw a flicker of some kind of reaction in the green eyes, but put it down to imagination. It wasn't possible the gambler had heard of him.

"Just in off the trail? Thought I hadn't seen you around town before, Texas?"

Kerry grinned. "Yes, I'm from Texas—and no reward out for me."

"You never know, do you? Reason I asked—I've got a friend down there. Muscatelo County—" you ever been around that way?"

Kerry nodded shortly. How far did a man have to ride to get away from the past?

"Then maybe you've met my friend. Name of Cameron."

"Wayne Cameron?"

"That's right. Know him?"

"Met him a couple of times."

"Smart fellow, Wayne," Calder observed. "Generally knows what he's after. Generally gets it, too. That's something I admire in a man."

"Most people do," Kerry retorted, and couldn't resist adding, "You friend Cameron didn't seem to know what he was after this time. He let me get stuck with the most worthless strip of sand and cactus in the country."

"From what he wrote me," Calder replied mildly, "most of the good land is already taken. Man named Mallory—he's the big augur around there, isn't he?"

"You might call him that."

Kerry agreed, adding dryly, "You'd admire him. He generally gets what he goes after, too."

"So I hear. But he got it a long time ago, didn't he?"

"Well?"

"A man that sits in the saddle too long is apt to get careless. Haven't you noticed that?"

"Can't say I have, particularly."

Impatiently, Kerry shook off a vague uneasiness. Broken Spur's affairs were none of his any more.

"Hey, Calder," a rough call from one of the card-tables struck at them, "you gonna gimme a chance to win my money back?"

"No, Mr. Wharton, but if you're determined to send some more to keep it company, I'll oblige you."

The man called Wharton laughed sourly. He was young, heavy featured, flushed of face, with a swollen set to his thick-lipped mouth. Calder inclined his head toward Kerry. "Care to take a hand, Mr. Hurdan?"

Kerry hesitated, remembering the no-emptiness state of his pockets. But he might be lucky tonight. He couldn't, anyway, be much worse off than he was now.

"Don't mind if I do."

Calder was a smooth player. He was lucky, but Kerry couldn't see any evidence that it was anything more than luck. The only complaint he could make was that, unlike most professional gamblers, the scar-faced man was inclined to crow. His glib tongue rubbed Kerry's fur the wrong way, and he could see it was doing worse than that to Wharton.

MILK ADDS MILLIONS TO FARMERS' INCOMES

Old Bossy produced 99 million dollars worth of milk in Kentucky the past year. So says a statement from the University of Kentucky, issued in connection with June as Dairy Month. There were 628,000 cows in the state in 1954.

Dairy cow numbers in Kentucky have made a steady and consistent growth in the past three decades. In 1924 milk cow numbers were 24 per cent higher and milk production 41 percent larger than the average for the years from 1924 to 1930.

Kentucky farmers have taken advantage of new and growing markets for whole milk and have shifted away from sour cream and butterfat. In 1925 there were no cheese plants and no evaporated milk and ice cream manufacturers. Since 1930 there has been a decline in the number of creameries and cream buying stations and an increase in the whole milk outlets.

The decline in the demand for butter and the enlargement of whole milk routes and new plants have resulted in a nine fold increase in milk sales paralleled by a sharp decline in butterfat sales.

Watson-Gilbert Vows Solemnized

Mrs. Don Gilbert

The wedding of Miss Jacquelyn Watson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Watson, of Murray, and Mr. Don Gilbert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Warden Gilbert also of Murray, took place on Friday, June 3, at the home of the bride.

Rev. L. C. Lee performed the double ring ceremony in the presence of the immediate families and close friends of the couple. The vows were pledged before an improvised altar of ferns, white gladioli, and white tapers in branched candelabra.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose for her wedding a sheer, white, ruffled dress with a pleated bodice and a fully gathered ballerina length skirt over net and taffeta. Her bridal bouquet was of white carnations, centered with tiny pink rose buds and stephanotis.

The attendants were Miss Olivia Barnett and Mr. Larry Hawes. Miss Judy Shoemaker played the wedding march.

Immediately following the ceremony, the couple left for a wedding trip through the south.

Upon their return they will reside with the bridegroom's parents at 1109 Sycamore Street.

Coffee Flavors Chiffon Cake and Frosting

What is the morning fragrance that's sweeter than all the perfumes of Arabia? Coffee! What spells out "welcome" or "cheer up" or "let's have a chat" without a word being spoken? Coffee, of course. And if ever a liquid could be called the Housewife's Friend, that title belongs to the same brown brew. In the kitchen, coffee has a score of auxiliary uses. To a cake or frosting, it imparts an exquisite and a subtle flavor. To meats and gravies, it adds a zestfully spicy taste. Yet its most important moment comes when the weary housewife, in need of a lift, pauses in her work with a "Now for a cup of coffee!"

So, in honor of our favorite beverage, we give you All-Coffee Chiffon Cake. There's coffee in the cake, coffee in the filling and frosting. As to the coffee in the cups, make it well and enjoy it. What would we do without it?

All-Coffee Chiffon Cake

2 eggs, separated 1/4 cup milk 1/2 cup coffee 1/2 cup sifted cake flour 1/2 cup cooking powder 2 teaspoons salt 1/2 cup milk 1/2 cup coffee 1/2 cup sifted cake flour 1/2 cup cooking powder 2 teaspoons salt

Beat egg whites until frothy.

Shipley Home Scene Rehearsal Dinner Saturday Evening

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Shipley were hosts for the rehearsal dinner for the Ezell-Shipley wedding party on Saturday, June 4, at six-thirty o'clock in the evening at their home on the Concord Road.

Small tables were placed on the spacious lawn where the guests were seated. Each table was overlaid with a pink cloth and centered with a white candle tied with puffs of carnations and greenery. The dining table overlaid with a white Maderia cloth, held a gorgeous arrangement of pink larkspur, candy tuft, and pink snapdragons.

The bride-elect, Miss Jean Ezell, wore for the occasion a blue linen dress with a corsage of pink carnations, gift of the hostess. Mrs. Shipley, who wore a corsage of white carnations, also presented Mrs. N. A. Ezell, Miss Rella Bonner, and Miss Judy Young each with a corsage of white carnations and Miss Lucy Ann Forest with a corsage of yellow carnations.

Those present were Miss Ezell, Mr. Hal Shipley, Mr. and Mrs. N. A. Ezell, Rev. Tom McCullough, Misses Rella Bonner, Judy Young, Lucy Ann Forest, Ann Parker, Shirley Parker, Alta Fay Andrus, Betty Mayer, Julia Hawkins, Margaret Ann Tarry, Patsy Shipley, and Barbara Knight. BOYLE FARMERS PLAN MORE FEED

About 2,000 acres of bluegrass in Boyle county were top-dressed with ammonium nitrate, according to UK County Agent John C. Brown. Six hundred acres also received an application of muriate of potash. About 100 pounds an acre of each of these materials were used.

Boyle farmers also planned to spray for the bluegrass plant bug. Brown said spraying and fertilizing would probably double seed production.

Droughts and pasture shortages have created interest in sudan grass for pasture and hay. Brown observed. Seeding sudan was stressed in pasture improvement meetings. Spring seeding of alfalfa this spring was about double that of 1954, judging from the sale of seed.
